Course Description:

This course examines the history of human rights in Canada. It explores the creation of rights linked to ethnicity, gender, language, religion, region, class and other characteristics. It asks both why rights have been created and what factors have limited the development of rights.

Antirequisite(s):

History 21287

Course Syllabus:

This course surveys Canadian human rights from Aboriginal views of liberty to contemporary views on ethnic, gender, language, class and other rights. Study of human rights history in Canada reveals forces promoting and challenging liberties. Rights remain controversial, as becomes evident through examining the impacts of Canada's Charter of Rights, which both protects Canadians and complicates as our Courts interpret its meanings. Lectures combined with discussion will hopefully show that Canada's so-called "Rights Revolution" has deep roots; they also reveal the fragile nature of rights often taken for granted. Increased historical awareness should aid in understanding the ongoing evolution of rights in Canada.

Course Materials:

There is no assigned Textbook for the course. If you wish a basic, brief work that focusses on the 20th century is: Dominique Clément. Human Rights In Canada: A History. Wilfrid Laurier Press, 2016.

Methods of Evaluation:

Participation	20%
Online Group Discussion	10
Reaction to "Pre-1929" Rights Contexts	15
Commentary on Rights "Element"	20
Final Exam	35

Given the brevity of the writing tasks, extensions will need to meet the formal University criteria.

Policy on Accommodation for Illness

See: http://www.uwo.ca/univsec/pdf/academic\_policies/appeals/accommodation\_illness.pdf.

For a missed class or online posting, please speak with me. No formal documents will be required for these minor cases [worth less than 10 percent]. Longer absences or other academic issues related to illness will require that documentation must be submitted by the student directly to the appropriate Faculty Dean's office and not to the instructor. It will be the Dean's office that will determine if accommodation is warranted.

Plagiarism:

Students must write their essays and assignments in their own words. Whenever students take an idea, or a passage from another author, they must acknowledge their debt both by using quotation marks where appropriate and by proper referencing such as footnotes or citations. Plagiarism is a major academic offense (see Scholastic Offence Policy in the Western Academic Calendar).

All required papers may be subject to submission for textual similarity review to the commercial plagiarism detection software under license to the University for the detection of plagiarism. All papers submitted will be included as source documents in the reference database for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of papers subsequently submitted to the system. Use of the service is subject to the licensing agreement, currently between The University of Western Ontario and Turnitin.com (<http://www.turnitin.com>).

The following rules pertain to the acknowledgements necessary in academic papers.

A. In using another writer's words, you must both place the words in quotation marks and acknowledge that the words are those of another writer.

You are plagiarizing if you use a sequence of words, a sentence or a paragraph taken from other writers without acknowledging them to be theirs. Acknowledgement is indicated either by (1) mentioning the author and work from which the words are borrowed in the text of your paper; or by (2) placing a footnote number at the end of the quotation in your text, and including a correspondingly numbered footnote at the bottom of the page (or in a separate reference section at the end of your essay). This footnote should indicate author, title of the work, place and date of Publication and page number. Method (2) given above is usually preferable for academic essays because it provides the reader with more information about your sources and leaves your text uncluttered with parenthetical and tangential references. In either case words taken from another author must be enclosed in quotation marks or set off from your text by single spacing and indentation in such a way that they cannot be mistaken for your own words. Note that you cannot avoid indicating quotation simply by changing a word or phrase in a sentence or paragraph which is not your own.

B. In adopting other writer's ideas, you must acknowledge that they are theirs.

You are plagiarizing if you adopt, summarize, or paraphrase other writers' trains of argument, ideas or sequences of ideas without acknowledging their authorship according to the method of acknowledgement given in 'A' above. Since the words are your own, they need not be enclosed in quotation marks. Be certain, however, that the words you use are entirely your own; where you must use words or phrases from your source; these should be enclosed in quotation marks, as in 'A' above.

Clearly, it is possible for you to formulate arguments or ideas independently of another writer who has expounded the same ideas, and whom you have not read. Where you got your ideas is the important consideration here. Do not be afraid to present an argument or idea without acknowledgement to another writer, if you have arrived at it entirely independently. Acknowledge it if you have derived it from a source outside your own thinking on the subject.

In short, use of acknowledgements and, when necessary, quotation marks is necessary to distinguish clearly between what is yours and what is not. Since the rules have been explained to you, if you fail to make this distinction, your instructor very likely will do so for you, and they will be forced to regard your omission as intentional literary theft. Plagiarism is a serious offence which may result in a student's receiving an 'F' in a course or, in extreme cases, in their suspension from the University.
