THE CUBAN REVOLUTION: ORIGINS AND LEGACY

Fall/Winter 2018-19
Mon. 9:30 – 11:30 STVH 2166

Instructor: Luz María Hernández Sáenz

Office Hours: TBA
Department of History, Office: STVH 2124
Email: lmhs@uwo.ca

Course Description:

The Cuban Revolution was a seminal event that affected Cuba and all Latin American countries, and shaped their relations with the United States during the second half of the twentieth century. This course analyzes the causes of the Cuban Revolution and consequences for Cuba and the rest of Latin America.

Prerequisite(s):

1.0 History course at the 2200 level or above.

Unless you have either the requisites for this course or written special permission from your Dean to enroll in it, you may be removed from this course and it will be deleted from your record. The decision may not be appealed. You will receive no adjustment to your fees in the event that you are dropped from a course for failing to have the necessary prerequisites.

Antirequisite(s):

History 3596G taken in 2010 or summer 2011.

Course Syllabus:

The Cuban Revolution was a seminal event in the history of the modern world. Fidel Castro's movement changed Cuba and became a determinant factor in the relations between Latin America and the United States during the second half of the twentieth century. The Cuban Revolution continues to be a controversial topic, eulogized by its admirers and vilified by its critics.

The aims of this course are threefold. First, to introduce students to the ongoing debate on the merits and results of the Cuban Revolution. Second, to analyze the Revolution and its legacy from Cuba's perspective. Third, to introduce students to primary and secondary Latin American sources. In order to achieve these goals, the course content is divided into three parts. The first will explore the social, political and economic forces that gave rise to the Cuban Revolution. The second part will analyze the Revolution's social achievements and the economic and political challenges it faces. The final weeks of the course will place the Revolution in the context of the Cold War and concentrate on its international consequences by examining Cuba's foreign relations with Latin America and the United States.

As a third-year seminar course, The Cuban Revolution is designed to help students develop their research and analytic skills as well as their writing and public speaking abilities.

The aim of this course is to provide students with a general knowledge on the main figures, historical events and theoretical concepts of revolution, to teach them to analyze historical events and their consequences in a theoretical framework, analyze the social, economic and political changes resulting from the Revolution, identify key figures, events and historiographical trends of the Cuban Revolution and their significance for the history of Cuba and the Americas; analyze and assess primary and secondary texts and utilize them in a written essay and to help them improve oral and written communication skills

To achieve these aims, students are expected to do the weekly reading assignments, to come to class prepared to discuss their readings and take turns to lead the class discussion. They must also complete three written assignments and a short term-paper proposal, and give a fifteen-minute presentation at the end of the course.

Course Materials:

Marifeli Pérez-Stable, The Cuban Revolution. Origins, Course and Legacy, 3rd edition (New York, Oxford: Oxford University Press, 3rd edition, 2012).

Michael Casey, Che's Afterlife: The Legacy of an Image (New York: Vintage Books, 2009).

Articles and other readings available at the library and OWL.

Class discussion

This course has an important discussion component. Each week one student will lead the class discussion in which all students are expected to participate. Reading of the assigned articles and participation in their analysis and discussion is mandatory. The quality of issues discussed as well as individual participation will have an essential role in determining the final mark.

Book review

Each student will write a five to seven-page book review of Michael Casey, Che's Afterlife: The Legacy of an Image (New York: Vintage Books, 2009). Reviews will be discussed in class.

Historiographical Paper

Each student will write a historiographical ten-page paper based on a minimum of seven class readings of his/her choosing. This assignment aims to help students develop the skills needed to understand and evaluate specific historical interpretations, as well as the trends that exist in the study of history. Further instructions will be given in class.

Research Paper

Each student will write a fifteen-page paper based on a minimum of seven secondary (a maximum of two titles from the general readings may be included) and two primary sources on any of the given topics. A tentative topic and bibliography will be handed no later than October 13. Topic and sources must be approved before students begin their research. Each student will present his/her paper to the class. Attendance to the presentations (Nov. 10 to Dec. 1) and participation in the discussions is mandatory.

Please, note that LATE ASSIGNMENTS WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED.

In case of illness, students will require documentation from Student Services. This will be submitted by the student directly to the appropriate Faculty Dean's office and not to the instructor. It will be the Dean's office that will determine if accommodation is warranted. Please see Medical Issues below.

Non-illness absences from midterms or late essays or assignments must be discussed with the instructor at least a week before the date in question to reach an alternative solution.

Additional Statements

Academic Offences:

Scholastic Offences are taken seriously and students are directed to read the appropriate policy, specifically, the definition of what constitute a Scholastic Offence, at the following Web site:

http://www.uwo.ca/univsec/pdf/academic_policies/appeals/scholastic_discipline_undergrad.pdf

All required papers may be subject to submission for textual similarity review to the commercial plagiarism detection software under license to the University for the detection of plagiarism. All papers submitted for such checking will be included as source documents in the reference database for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of papers subsequently submitted to the system. Use of the service is subject to the licensing agreement, currently between The University of Western Ontario and Turnitin.com (<http://www.turnitin.com>).

Accessibility Options:

Please contact the course instructor if you require material in an alternate format or if you require any other arrangements to make this course more accessible to you. You may also wish to contact Services for Students with Disabilities (SSD) at 519 661-2111 x 82147 for any specific question regarding an accommodation.

Information regarding accommodation of exams is available on the Registrar's website:

Medical Issues

The University recognizes that a student's ability to meet his/her academic responsibilities may, on occasion, be impaired by medical illness. Please go to:

https://studentservices.uwo.ca/secure/medical_accommodations_link_for_OOR.pdf

to read about the University's policy on medical accommodation. In the event of illness, you should contact Academic Counselling as soon as possible. The Academic Counsellors will determine, in consultation with the student, whether or not accommodation should be requested. They will subsequently contact the instructors in the relevant courses about the accommodation. Once the instructor has made a decision about whether to grant an accommodation, the student should contact his/her instructors to determine a new due date for tests, assignments, and exams.

Students must see the Academic Counsellor and submit all required documentation in order to be approved for certain accommodation: http://counselling.ssc.uwo.ca/procedures/medical_accommodation.html

Plagiarism:

Students must write their essays and assignments in their own words. Whenever students take an idea, or a passage from another author, they must acknowledge their debt both by using quotation marks where appropriate and by proper referencing such as footnotes or citations. Plagiarism is a major academic offense (see Scholastic Offence Policy in the Western Academic Calendar).

All required papers may be subject to submission for textual similarity review to the commercial plagiarism detection software under license to the University for the detection of plagiarism. All papers submitted will be included as source documents in the reference database for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of papers subsequently submitted to the system. Use of the service is subject to the licensing agreement, currently between The University of Western Ontario and Turnitin.com (<http://www.turnitin.com>).

The following rules pertain to the acknowledgements necessary in academic papers.

A. In using another writer's words, you must both place the words in quotation marks and acknowledge that the words are those of another writer.

You are plagiarizing if you use a sequence of words, a sentence or a paragraph taken from other writers without acknowledging them to be theirs. Acknowledgement is indicated either by (1) mentioning the author and work from which the words are borrowed in the text of your paper; or by (2) placing a footnote number at the end of the quotation in your text, and including a correspondingly numbered footnote at the bottom of the page (or in a separate reference section at the end of your essay). This footnote should indicate author, title of the work, place and date of Publication and page number. Method (2) given above is usually preferable for academic essays because it provides the reader with more information about your sources and leaves your text uncluttered with parenthetical and tangential references. In either case words taken from another author must be enclosed in quotation marks or set off from your text by single spacing and indentation in such a way that they cannot be mistaken for your own words. Note that you cannot avoid indicating quotation simply by changing a word or phrase in a sentence or paragraph which is not your own.

B. In adopting other writer's ideas, you must acknowledge that they are theirs.

You are plagiarizing if you adopt, summarize, or paraphrase other writers' trains of argument, ideas or sequences of ideas without acknowledging their authorship according to the method of acknowledgement given in 'A' above. Since the words are your own, they need not be enclosed in quotation marks. Be certain, however, that the words you use are entirely your own; where you must use words or phrases from your source; these should be enclosed in quotation marks, as in 'A' above.

Clearly, it is possible for you to formulate arguments or ideas independently of another writer who has expounded the same ideas, and whom you have not read. Where you got your ideas is the important consideration here. Do not be afraid to present an argument or idea without acknowledgement to another writer, if you have arrived at it entirely independently. Acknowledge it if you have derived it from a source outside your own thinking on the subject.

In short, use of acknowledgements and, when necessary, quotation marks is necessary to distinguish clearly between what is yours and what is not. Since the rules have been explained to you, if you fail to make this distinction, your instructor very likely will do so for you, and they will be forced to regard your omission as intentional literary theft. Plagiarism is a serious offence which may result in a student's receiving an 'F' in a course or, in extreme cases, in their suspension from the University.
