Course Description:
This course provides an analysis of the field of modern Canadian history (post-1867) by focusing on a variety of established topics/fields and examining the most relevant works. The course offers an in depth study of post-Confederation Canadian history and historiography. The aims and outcomes focus on reading, discussing, and writing. The course also provides an excellent opportunity for doctoral candidates preparing for comprehensive examinations in the field of modern (post-confederation) Canadian history or for MA candidates working on a thesis or cognate in any field of Canadian history.

Course Syllabus:
The classes are structured as seminars that follow a schedule listing the topics to be discussed and required readings (approximately two books a week). All students are required to come to every seminar fully prepared by doing the readings. Student preparation and participation in the seminar process are crucial to the overall success of the course.

Course Materials:
Students are responsible for locating (and sharing) the course readings through the library system. When possible, readings will be provided on the course webpage on OWL.

Methods of Evaluation:
All students are required to 1) be present and participate in all of the seminars, 2) produce three literature reviews of approximately 10 pages each OR one research essay of 30 pages OR one historiographical essay of 30 pages.

The following formula will be used to determine final grades (whichever results in the higher grade):

- Participation-50% OR Participation-30%
- Papers-50% OR Papers- 70%
Participation:
Value: 50% (or 30%)
Date: Duration of Class
Length: N/A
Assignment: The weight given to participation demonstrates its importance to the success of a seminar format. Attendance, while being mandatory, does not constitute marks for participation.

Literature Reviews/Major Paper:
Value: 50% (or 70%)
Date: 4 October/8 November/6 December OR 6 December (for major paper)
Length: Approximately 10 pages each or 30 pages total
Assignment: The writing assignment is meant to be as flexible as possible to meet the needs of students. MA students can use the class to write the first draft of their cognates or the historiographical section of their dissertations; PhD students can use the class to write the first draft of their Canadian field comprehensive paper; PhD students can use the class to write something for their dissertations; or students can select three weeks of readings and write three literature reviews.

Plagiarism:

Students must write their essays and assignments in their own words. Whenever students take an idea, or a passage from another author, they must acknowledge their debt both by using quotation marks where appropriate and by proper referencing such as footnotes or citations. Plagiarism is a major academic offense (see Scholastic Offence Policy in the Western Academic Calendar).

All required papers may be subject to submission for textual similarity review to the commercial plagiarism detection software under license to the University for the detection of plagiarism. All papers submitted will be included as source documents in the reference database for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of papers subsequently submitted to the system. Use of the service is subject to the licensing agreement, currently between The University of Western Ontario and Turnitin.com (http://www.turnitin.com).

The following rules pertain to the acknowledgements necessary in academic papers.

A. In using another writer's words, you must both place the words in quotation marks and acknowledge that the words are those of another writer.

You are plagiarizing if you use a sequence of words, a sentence or a paragraph taken from other writers without acknowledging them to be theirs. Acknowledgement is indicated either by (1) mentioning the author and work from which the words are borrowed in the text of your paper; or by (2) placing a footnote number at the end of the quotation in your text, and including a correspondingly numbered footnote at the bottom of the page (or in a separate reference section at the end of your essay). This footnote should indicate author, title of the work, place and date of Publication and page number. Method (2) given above is usually preferable for academic essays because it provides the reader with more information about your sources and leaves your text uncluttered with parenthetical and tangential references. In either case words taken from another author must be enclosed in quotation marks or set off from your text by single spacing and indentation in such a way that they cannot be mistaken for your own words. Note that you cannot avoid indicating quotation simply by changing a word or phrase in a sentence or paragraph which is not your own.

B. In adopting other writer's ideas, you must acknowledge that they are theirs.

You are plagiarizing if you adopt, summarize, or paraphrase other writers' trains of argument, ideas or sequences of ideas without acknowledging their authorship according to the method of acknowledgement given in 'A' above. Since the words are your own, they need not be enclosed in quotation marks. Be certain, however, that the words you use are entirely your own; where you must use words or phrases from your source; these should be enclosed in quotation marks, as in 'A' above.

Clearly, it is possible for you to formulate arguments or ideas independently of another writer who has expounded the same ideas, and whom you have not read. Where you got your ideas is the important consideration here. Do not be afraid to present an argument or idea without acknowledgement to another writer, if you have arrived at it entirely independently. Acknowledge it if you have derived it from a source outside your own thinking on the subject.

In short, use of acknowledgements and, when necessary, quotation marks is necessary to distinguish clearly between what is yours and what is not. Since the rules have been explained to you, if you fail to make this distinction, your instructor very likely will do so for you, and they will be forced to regard your omission as intentional literary theft. Plagiarism is a serious offence which may result in a student's receiving an 'F' in a course or, in extreme cases, in their suspension from the University.
