This course examines in detail four transformational wars in the history of the world – the Spice Wars, the American Civil War, the First World War, and the Vietnam War – both in lectures and in small discussion groups that will also focus on the development of foundational analytical and writing skills. Topics include the implications and effects of war for civilians, trade, popular culture, and technology.

The Tutorial Assistants (TAs) for the course are TBA. They will not be holding regularly scheduled office hours, but will be available to meet with students by appointment.

Learning Outcomes
Through the lectures and four assignments, students will gain:
Basic primary source skills: what are primary sources?; authorship and audience; Veritas et utilitas (truth and usefulness)
Basic secondary source skills: what are secondary sources?; secondary sources as interpretation; dealing with different interpretations; synthesis of extensive reading
Familiarity with the library and electronic resources
A full understanding of plagiarism and its problems
Basic paper-writing skills: organization, citation, and footnoting
Participation and communication skills in small-group discussion
An appreciation of the fundamental role of war and conflict in shaping history and society
Textbooks
Students must purchase the following textbooks, which will be used for tutorial discussions and assignments. They are available in the bookstore.

Other materials for use in tutorial discussions and for assignments will be available on the course website.

Submitting assignments
All assignments are to be submitted in tutorial. Late assignments will be subject to a deduction of two marks per day, not including weekend days. Assignments submitted more than seven days after the due date, without the requisite accommodation from Academic Counselling, will not be graded.

In addition to the hard copy, all assignments must be submitted electronically to the Turnitin plagiarism detection service. Detailed instructions for the submission process through the course website on Sakai will be provided in class. Students are strongly advised not to wait until the last few minutes before midnight to submit the paper. High demand or internet failure are not acceptable reasons for failing to submit on time. In the event of any problems, contact your instructor.

Note: “All required papers may be subject to submission for textual similarity review to the commercial plagiarism detection software under license to the University for the detection of plagiarism. All papers submitted will be included as source documents in the reference database for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of papers subsequently submitted to the system. Use of the service is subject to the licensing agreement, currently between The University of Western

Secondary source assignment:
Using at least two secondary sources, one of which must be from the weeks of 14 October or 21 October, identify the genre of each source, and examine how they could contribute to the development of a research paper. You might discuss the arguments, sources, methods, assumptions and/or implications of each or both, in any combination. DO NOT simply summarize the sources: this assignment is intended to allow you to demonstrate your ability to use secondary sources critically and imaginatively. Class readings will be discussed in these terms during tutorials, and further guidance for this paper will be provided in class.
Due week of 14 October 2013

Bibliographical assignment:
The object of the assignment will be the preparation, in outline form, of a textbook or website dealing with nineteenth-century America. Students will work in groups, and the group will have flexibility in deciding the format and the exact subject. Each student in a group will be responsible for a single section, and for each section a variety of sources must be located, identified, and evaluated: a textbook; a monograph; a journal article; a visual source; a website. Each student must complete this assignment by indicating how the process of searching affected their understanding of their chosen topic. Each group will supply a similar summary statement.
Part 1 due week of 11 November 2013
Part 2 due week of 25 November 2013

Primary source document analysis:
You will be given an original document from the First World War to research and analyze. You should approach it as an exercise in historical detection – how much can the document tell you about the time, and about the people and events to which it refers? Because of the nature of the assignment, it does not need a thesis statement, like a conventional research paper. It should include reference notes and a bibliography. A sample analysis can be found on the course website.
Due week of 3 February 2014

Short research paper:
Each student will write a short research paper on some aspect of the Vietnam War. A list of representative topics will be provided, but student are encouraged to formulate their own topics. The assignment will allow you to bring together skills in interpreting primary and secondary sources, and in bibliographical research. A premium will be placed on your ability to present your argument in an organized fashion and with graceful prose.
Due week of 24 March 2014
The success of each tutorial depends on the willingness of students to keep up with the readings on a weekly basis and to take part fully in the discussion. Your participation (and note that you are assessed on participation, not simply attendance) will be assessed on an ongoing basis throughout the year. Attendance at tutorials is mandatory – any student who misses more than 5 tutorial sessions without accommodation from Academic Counselling will automatically fail the course.

In order to achieve a passing grade in this course, students MUST:
– sit BOTH examinations
– complete ALL assignments

History 1810E is designated as an essay course. In order to obtain a passing grade in the course, each student must exhibit a minimum level of competence in essay writing and the appropriate level of knowledge of the content of the course. In practical terms, this means that each student, to pass the course, must achieve a passing grade in the essay portion (ie. out of the combined essay grade of 60%, you must achieve at least 30%).

For reasons of privacy, students should communicate with the course directors and TAs using their UWO email addresses; all communications regarding the course will be sent to those email addresses, rather than to other accounts (Hotmail, Gmail, etc). Students should also regularly check the Announcements section on the course website for updates.

We recognize that, for academic purposes, students rely heavily on electronic devices such as laptops or smartphones, and may be accustomed to using them in class for taking notes or following the readings. Our assumption is that students will be respectful of their instructors and fellow students in using electronic devices, and will not engage in activities that distract those around them. In the event of disruptive use of such devices, the course directors reserve the right to request that any device be turned off or put away; in extreme cases, a student may be asked to leave the lecture hall.

Please note the University Senate’s statement on plagiarism: “Scholastic offenses are taken seriously and students are directed to read the appropriate policy, specifically, the definition of what constitutes a Scholastic Offense, at the following website:

PLAGIARISM

Students must write their essays and assignments in their own words. Whenever students take an idea, or a passage from another author, they must acknowledge their debt both by using quotation marks where appropriate and by proper referencing such as footnotes or citations. Plagiarism is a major academic offense (see Scholastic Offence Policy in the Western Academic Calendar).

All required papers may be subject to submission for textual similarity review to the commercial plagiarism detection software under license to the University for the detection of plagiarism. All papers submitted will be included as source documents in the reference database for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of papers subsequently submitted to the system. Use of the service is subject to the licensing agreement, currently between The University of Western Ontario and Turnitin.com (http://www.turnitin.com).

The following rules pertain to the acknowledgements necessary in academic papers.

A. In using another writer's words, you must both place the words in quotation marks and acknowledge that the words are those of another writer.

You are plagiarizing if you use a sequence of words, a sentence or a paragraph taken from other writers without acknowledging them to be theirs. Acknowledgement is indicated either by (1) mentioning the author and work from which the words are borrowed in the text of your paper; or by (2) placing a footnote number at the end of the quotation in your text, and including a correspondingly numbered footnote at the bottom of the page (or in a separate reference section at the end of your essay). This footnote should indicate author, title of the work, place and date of Publication and page number. Method (2) given above is usually preferable for academic essays because it provides the reader with more information about your sources and leaves your text uncluttered with parenthetical and tangential references. In either case words taken from another author must be enclosed in quotation marks or set off from your text by single spacing and indentation in such a way that they cannot be mistaken for your own words. Note that you cannot avoid indicating quotation simply by changing a word or phrase in a sentence or paragraph which is not your own.

B. In adopting other writer's ideas, you must acknowledge that they are theirs.

You are plagiarizing if you adopt, summarize, or paraphrase other writers' trains of argument, ideas or sequences of ideas without acknowledging their authorship according to the method of acknowledgement given in 'At above. Since the words are your own, they need not be enclosed in quotation marks. Be certain, however, that the words you use are entirely your own; where you must use words or phrases from your source; these should be enclosed in quotation marks, as in 'A' above.

Clearly, it is possible for you to formulate arguments or ideas independently of another writer who has expounded the same ideas, and whom you have not read. Where you got your ideas is the important consideration here. Do not be afraid to present an argument or idea without acknowledgement to another writer, if you have arrived at it entirely independently. Acknowledge it if you have derived it from a source outside your own thinking on the subject.

In short, use of acknowledgements and, when necessary, quotation marks is necessary to distinguish clearly between what is yours and what is not. Since the rules have been explained to you, if you fail to make this distinction, your instructor very likely will do so for you, and they will be forced to regard your omission as intentional literary theft. Plagiarism is a serious offence which may result in a student's receiving an 'F' in a course or, in extreme cases, in their suspension from the University.

MEDICAL ACCOMMODATION

The University recognizes that a student’s ability to meet his/her academic responsibilities may, on occasion, be impaired by medical illness. Please go to https://studentservices.uwo.ca/secure/medical_accommodations_link_for_OOR.pdf to read about the University’s policy on medical accommodation. Please go to http://www.uwo.ca/univsec/handbook/appeals/medicalform.pdf to download the necessary form. In the event of illness, you should contact Academic Counselling as soon as possible. The Academic Counsellors will determine, in consultation with the student, whether or not accommodation is warranted. They will subsequently contact the instructors in the relevant courses about the accommodation. Once a decision has been made about accommodation, the student should contact his/her instructors to determine a new due date for term tests, assignments, and exams.

If you have any further questions or concerns please contact, Rebecca Dashford, Undergraduate Program Advisor, Department of History, 519-661-2111 x84962 or rdashfo@uwo.ca
