This is a draft syllabus. Please see your course OWL site for the final syllabus.

Course Description:

This course will focus on female protest movements whose primary goal was to better the lives of women. With attention to issues of gender, sexuality, race, and class, it will explore various conditions that gave rise to rebellion, and will assess the movements' strategies and achievements.

Prerequisite(s):

1.0 History course at the 2200 level or above.

Unless you have either the prerequisites for this course or written special permission from your Dean to enroll in it, you may be removed from this course and it will be deleted from your record. The decision may not be appealed. You will receive no adjustment to your fees in the event that you are dropped from a course for failing to have the necessary prerequisites.

Antirequisite(s):

History 2813F/G.

Course Syllabus:

While women have participated in many protest movements on behalf of countless causes, this seminar half-course focuses on those female protest movements whose primary goal has been to better the lives of women in particular. Important acts of resistance and rebellion have generally been studied as the preserve of men, and as most often involving violence. But for women, due largely to gender expectations that have governed their behavior, protest has more often taken other forms. This course will explore the social and economic conditions that have given rise to rebellion, with attention to issues of gender, sexuality, class, ethnicity, and race, and will study movements, groups, and individuals who have battled these injustices. It will also assess the achievements of these women by reconsidering the standards by which their “success” and/or “failure” have been measured. All of these examinations will consider various sociological/political theories related to the character of social/protest movements.

Learning Outcomes:
Students should be able to:

chronicle the central priorities, struggles, and achievements of some major women’s protest movements, and the ways in which they have been shaped by, and have influenced, various historical events and trends.

understand the ways in which issues of gender, sexuality, class, ethnicity, and race have intersected in women’s protest movements.

recognize the ways in which women’s protest movements have been similar to and have differed from those of men, with consideration of motivation, strategy, reprisal, outcome, and measures of success.

Course Materials:

1. Online articles (with links) listed under the topics below
2. Articles posted on OWL

[For a vast online collection of primary sources, see Women and Social Movements in the United States, 1600-2000: <http://asp6new.alexanderstreet.com/wam2/wam2.index.map.aspx>]

Methods of Evaluation:

Research essay (12-15): TBA	45%
Critiques (2): TBA	30%
Seminar presentation: TBA	15%
Participation:	10%

Seminar Presentation: You will sign up for a presentation date beginning in Week 5. On your selected date, you (possibly along with one other) will present one of the scheduled articles. In your presentation, address and critique your article’s thesis, main arguments, biases, and sources, and situate your article in the larger historiography. As well, discuss your related essay topic in the context of your reading. Stimulate class discussion by asking questions and fielding comments. Feel free to incorporate audio-visual aids. You will be graded on the content of your presentation, and on your facilitation of the seminar discussion. Your presentation will last at least 30 minutes.

To facilitate the research of your essay, the subject of your essay will coincide with the general seminar topic of your selected presentation date. Your essay (in paper and electronic format) will be due on that same day in class. As your classmates are relying on the timely submission of your essay in order to write their critiques (see below), essays MUST be submitted on your assigned due date. Late research essays will not be accepted for grading.

Those students not presenting an article and submitting an essay on a given week will be required to do the assigned readings, participate in the seminar discussion, and write an essay critique. Select two student essays (which will be accessible on OWL) on which you would like to write a critique (do not select an essay by a co-presenter). Your critique is due in class, and must be submitted (in electronic format) no later than one week following the submission of the essay about which it is written. Submitted critiques will not be seen by anyone other than me; they will be returned with a mark as soon as possible. Critiques should be two typed pages, be double-spaced, include a thesis statement, and assess the strengths and weaknesses of the papers. When submitting your critique, please indicate if it is critique 1 or 2.

Accommodation for missed tests/midterms, including Self-Reported Absences (SRA):

Students with an approved absence from an in-class test will be required to write a makeup test.

Students should be aware that the make-up test will not necessarily be in the same format, be of the same duration, or cover the same material as the original test.

Online courses will have online makeup tests.

In person classes have scheduled makeup tests scheduled at the following times:

Fall Term

- Tests scheduled before November 1 – the makeup will take place November 8 at 9:30am.
- Tests scheduled between November 2 and December 7 – the makeup will take place December 8 at 9:30pm.

Winter Term

- Tests scheduled before February 19 – the makeup will take place February 28 at 9:30am.
- Tests scheduled between February 20 and March 31 – the makeup will take place April 1 at 12:30pm

No other make-up opportunities will be provided. Students who fail to write a makeup test in the designated time slots will receive a grade of zero.

Course professors may not be available to respond to questions during the makeup test slots.

Students should be aware that when they have submitted an SRA for one test, they are not permitted to write a test or complete an assignment for another course during the period covered by the SRA. Failure to observe this regulation will result in the cancellation of the SRA and the possible application of late penalties.

Accommodation for missed assignment deadlines with a Self-Reported Absence:

If a student reports a SRA for an assignment (i.e. an essay) the new due date will be 48 hours after the SRA was submitted.
