This is a draft syllabus. Please see your course OWL site for the final syllabus.

Course delivery with respect to the COVID-19 pandemic: The intent is for this course to be delivered in-person but should the COVID-19 landscape shift, the course will be delivered on-line asynchronously. The grading scheme will not change. The course will return to an in-person mode of delivery when the University and local health authorities deem it safe to do so.

Course Description: This course examines the history and development of museums and their changing role in society across the globe from the ancient world to the 21st century.

Antirequisite(s): MCS 2610F/G

Course Syllabus: Themes include the rise of anthropology and natural sciences; looting; repatriation; professionalization; colonialism/decolonization; representation of the ‘other’; museums as political and cultural tools.

Learning Objectives:

By the end of this course, students will:

• be familiar with thematic issues in the social, cultural, and political history of museums
• have conducted historical research
• have practised formulating and communicating an effective argument, and demonstrating good research and writing skills
• be able to evaluate objects through material culture theory
• be able to critically evaluate exhibitions as historical sources

Recommended expectations and outcomes for 2nd year courses are here: https://www.history.uwo.ca/undergraduate/program_information/expectations__outcomes.html

Course Materials: Most readings are online through the library catalogue or through OWL, as noted below. The main texts are:

Research Essay: Students will write a research essay on a topic of their choice in the history of museums of 10-12 double spaced pages in length, plus bibliography, with use of a minimum of 12 academic books and/or journal articles. If you are unsure if a source is academic, please contact me.

Encyclopedia articles, textbooks, or lectures cannot be used. Good sources for research have arguments rather than being simply descriptive or exploratory.

This research paper topic should be focused. Topics can be refined by narrowing down the time period, the geographical area, the themes, case studies, or policies. Do not try to cover a topic in a whole country, or all developments of one time period.

A good historical research paper will have a specific thesis argument which is well supported by historical evidence. Historians start research with a set of related questions, not already decided-upon statements. Instead, they examine the historical evidence to find the answers to their questions, like a detective starts an investigation with questions solved by examining the evidence left behind. The answer to your question(s) is your thesis. Thesis arguments are not personal opinions or ethical statements about what “should” be. They are also written argumentatively, not descriptively.

Structurally, the paper should include an introductory paragraph with a thesis argument (1 paragraph); background information that the reader needs to understand your research (max. 1 page); a detailed exploration of the historical evidence that supports your argument (8-10 pages); a conclusion which re-asserts your thesis (1 paragraph).

Common essay writing mistakes: choosing too large of a topic for page length; writing in the passive voice not active voice; beginning with broad sweeping generalizations; and not following Chicago style manual. Quoting should be rare and only then from primary, not secondary, sources unless extremely eloquent. Quotes are not ‘proof’ of your argument; historical evidence and examples are proof. Always write in the past tense.

As your papers may be about museum exhibits or material culture, you may include photographs in your paper. However, pictures are additional; you still must write 10-12 pages of text for the essay.

Footnotes and bibliography should follow the Chicago Manual of Style format. See https://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/home.html. Bibliography should be divided into primary and secondary sources, if relevant.
Please use your last name as part of the file name of your document. Submit your essay as an MS Word document via OWL.

For more information, see the marking rubric document on OWL.

Students will upload essays in the Assignments tab in OWL (including Turn-it-in) on March 15, 2023 by 5pm.

If there a question about plagiarism in essays, students will be asked at any time to produce research notes made during the research process. Please keep your notes and drafts of your paper.

Exams: Students will write a midterm and final exam. Both exams will draw from lectures, readings, films, websites, podcasts, and museum visits. Questions will be of two types: identification/significance questions, and essays. The midterm will be written during class time on February 8, 2023. The final exam will be written during the university’s final exam period.

Use of Electronic Devices: Use of any electronic devices will not be allowed during the exams. In the midterm, students must leave their phone or other device in an area in the classroom away from the desks.

Due Dates and Late Penalties: Assignments are due on the date specified above. Penalty for late assignments is 2% each day (including Saturdays and Sundays). Extensions may be granted if legitimate circumstances are presented by the student to the instructor well in advance of the due date. Poor work planning (such as “I have XX other work due”) is not grounds for an extension. There will be no exceptions unless students provide medical documentation. For all medical and non-medical issues that might warrant accommodation, including all assignments, exams, tests, presentations, and class attendance, please go to academic counselling.

Accommodation for missed tests/midterms: Students with an approved absence from an in-class test will be required to write a makeup test. Students should be aware that the make-up test will not necessarily be in the same format, be of the same duration, or cover the same material as the original test.

For in-person classes, make-up tests will be written at one of the Department of History make-up midterms. Dates for the make-ups will be listed on the Department of History website under Important Dates.

IMPORTANT: In the event the University moves to online learning make-up tests will take place online via OWL. The date for the make-up may differ from the date listed above.

No other make-up opportunities will be provided unless further academic consideration is granted by Academic Counselling. Students who fail to write a make-up test in a designated time slot will receive a grade of zero on that assessment.

Course professors may not be available to respond to questions during the make-up test slots.
