This is a draft syllabus. Please see the course site on OWL for a final version.

from Benjamin West, The Death of General Wolfe, 1770 & Kent Monkman, The Scream, 2017

Course Description:
This course surveys the history of Canada – from the last ice age to today – with an emphasis on Indigenous peoples, colonialism, and imperialism; the history of warfare and international relations; immigration, industrialization, and state formation; and the diverse ways that gender, race, and class have shaped the lives of Canadians.

Antirequisite(s):
History 1201E, History 2203E, History 2204F/G, History 2205E, History 2710F/G.

Course Syllabus:
Students will write one primary source-based assignment, one annotated bibliography, one major essay, and two examinations. Students will also participate in online synchronous tutorials and discuss readings and lectures in tutorials.

Learning outcomes:
By the course’s completion, students will be able to

- identify, investigate, and discuss key themes and developments in the history of Canada,
- relate contemporary issues in Canadian life to their historical developments,
- interpret and evaluate primary source historical documents, exploring their factual basis, assumptions, biases, and rhetoric,
- analyze and assess secondary sources, and
- improve their skills in communicating ideas and arguments through class discussions and written assignments.

Methods of Evaluation:

Further information on all assignments are provided on OWL.

- Document analysis – due on OWL, 16 October – 8%
  In mid-September, students will be provided with a set of primary-source documents on pre-20th century Canada and will write a 750-word essay analyzing one of them. What does the document reveal about its subject and about the people and events to which it refers? What biases might be inherent in it and how should the historian address those biases in using the document?

- Major research essay
  The course’s major writing assignment is a research essay on a topic related to any period of Canadian history, using secondary and (at least one) primary sources. Students may choose from a list of potential topics made available to them, or they may select their own subject which must be approved by their tutorial leader.
    - Part 1 – Proposal and annotated bibliography – due on OWL, 6 November – 7%
      Students will submit a 250-word description of their proposed second-term research essay, outlining its topic and proposed thesis, plus an annotated bibliography of a minimum 6 sources that they plan to use in their essay.
    - Part 2 – Research essay – due on OWL, 18 March – 25%
      Building on the steps they took in first term, students will submit a 3000-word research essay.

- Course engagement – 20%
  Students are expected to keep up with the lectures and assigned readings and take part in discussion about them in tutorials. Attendance in tutorials is mandatory, but attendance alone does not constitute participation. Tutorials begin first term during the week of 11 September and second term during the week of 8 January.
• Mid-year examination – December exam period – 20%
  The exam will cover all lectures, tutorials, and required readings from the first term, and will consist of short answer and essay questions.

• Final examination – April exam period – 20%
  The exam will cover all lectures, tutorials, and required readings from the second term, and will consist of short answer and essay questions.

Make-up midterms and exams can only be approved by Academic Counselling. Please see the History Department’s Undergraduate Policies and Statements page for procedures and requirements involving make-up exams.

Absences, Late Assignments, & Course-specific Policies:

- Students are to submit assignments through the course OWL site. The Faculty of Social Science’s policy statement on plagiarism and the use of plagiarism detection software is outlined in the History Department’s Undergraduate Policies and Statements page.
- The UWO Academic Handbook requires that an essay course such as His2201E “must be so structured that the student is required to demonstrate competence in essay writing to pass the course.” As such, His2201E students must receive a passing grade on the total value of the essays to pass the course.
- Written assignments, with the exception of exams, have a built-in, blanket extension: they can be submitted up to 7 days after the due date, without penalty. (But note: if a student chooses to submit the Proposal and Annotated Bibliography late, it may not be returned to them before the final date to drop the course without academic penalty, 30 November.) Beyond that, there will be a 3% deduction per day, including weekends.
- All assignments must be submitted in order to pass the course.
