DRAFT SYLLABUS

What This Course is About

In 2014 Russia launched a war against Ukraine. One dimension of the war is a history war, where Russia is promoting a false colonial narrative that Russians and Ukrainians are one people and always have been. This course looks at the Ukraine Russia historical encounter over the past 1,000 years and the current war through a historical lens. It explores how the past is casting a shadow over the present, how historical narratives were colonized and are now being de-colonized. By looking at Russian and Ukrainian history, placing it in an international context, and exploring concepts such as state, empire, nation, and the role of mass media, it provides a larger framework for understanding what is happening today.

How This Course is Structured

This is an in-person lecture course which meets once a week. Every week students will be expected to complete the required readings, attend the lecture, participate in an in-class discussion, and afterwards to complete a short online quiz. Students will be asked to write one essay on a topic from a list that will be provided by the instructor, although there will be an option to select your own topic in consultation with the professor. At the end of the course there will be an in-person final exam.
What Students Will Learn

This course is designed to increase student knowledge and skills. At the end of this course students will be able to:

- Demonstrate an understanding of the main developments in Russian and Ukrainian history
- Critically evaluate competing historical narratives and sources
- Explain the inter-connectedness of national and international history
- Explain the meaning of concepts such as empire, state, nation
